In 1996 Alexandra Boyd was cast by James Cameron to play 'First Class Woman' in Titanic, alongside many other supporting actors equally excited to have a role in such an impressive production.

ACTORS' STORIES FROM THE SET OF TITANIC

The experience gave them all a front-row seat to the making of a film of such magnitude, and a unique insider's view into what became one of the highest grossing movies of all time.

After the film won eleven Oscars, and realising their involvement meant they had collectively experienced something very special, Alexandra gathered together her cast mates to write down their memories in case one day they might be something others would want to share.

She presented a selection of them in her 2023 documentary, Ship of Dreams: Titanic Movie Diaries, and she presents them here: a unique collection of diaries kept by supporting actors on the film Titanic, delving into what it was like to be a tiny part of an epic film, still deeply loved by so many people all over the world.

Pulling back the curtain to reveal what it was like to be a tiny part of film history in the biggest movie of all time

Alexandra Boyd is a filmmaker who enjoyed a successful career acting in film, TV, and theatre, before moving into directing, screenwriting and producing. Her acting credits include Mr Holland's Opus, From Paris With Love and Coronation Street.

Her first feature (Widow's Walk) won Best Cinematography at the Chelsea Film Festival in New York. Her latest film project is the documentary Ship of Dreams: Titanic Movie Diaries. She co-hosts TITANIC TALK podcast with journalist and author Nelson Aspen; now in its fourth season, it has 70+ episodes.

"These diaries have become a record of what it felt like to step inside that world... and to experience, however briefly, life aboard Titanic."
